

Anchor Document

A paragraph of body text, long enough that it must break across more than one line so that the position of the break can be compared between the preview and the rendered page, which is the whole point of setting it in the same typeface at the same size.

First Section

Body text with a link to an external site and a cross-reference to the second section. It also carries `inline code` and strong and emphasised words.

An unordered list

- first item
- second item
 - a nested item

An ordered list

1. first step
2. second step

A description list

Term one

Its meaning.

Term two

Another meaning.

A source block with callouts

```
require 'asciidoctor-pdf' ①
Asciidoctor.convert_file 'doc.adoc', backend: 'pdf' ②
```

- ① Load the converter.
- ② Convert the document.

A literal block, set verbatim.

The Analytical Engine weaves algebraic patterns, just as the Jacquard loom weaves flowers and leaves.

– Ada Lovelace, Notes on the Analytical Engine

A verse block
keeps its own line breaks
and its own indentation.

– Anonymous

A sidebar

A sidebar block, set apart from the body text around it.

Example 1. An example block

An example block, framed by the theme.

NOTE | A note admonition.

TIP | A tip admonition.

IMPORTANT | An important admonition.

WARNING | A warning admonition.

CAUTION | A caution admonition.

Table 1. A table with a header row

Construct	Count	Note
Paragraphs	12	body
Lists	3	ordered, unordered, description
Tables	1	this one
Blocks	6	code, quote, verse, sidebar, example, literal

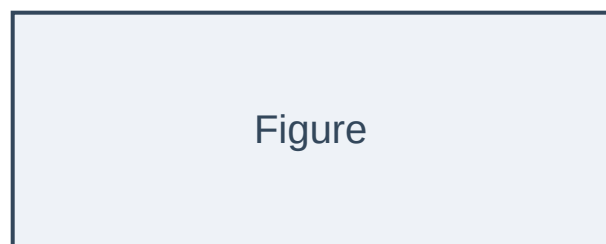

Figure 1. A figure caption

A sentence carrying a footnote.^[1]

Second Section

The closing paragraph, after the thematic break above.

[1] The footnote's own text, set at the theme's footnote size.